

Temple Square gears for Conference opening

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A worldwide network of radio and television stations is geared to carry today's opening session of the Mormon church's 145th Semiannual General Conference. Officials of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints say 400 stations in the United States, Europe, South America, Australia and parts of Asia and Africa will carry one or more of the three-day conference's eight sessions.

Each session lasts two hours, but some stations carry them only in part. New hookups are added to the broadcasts with each conference, officials say.

President Spencer W. Kimball, 80, is to keynote the opening session.

More than 8,000 people will gather on Temple Square for the meetings in the Mormon Tabernacle, with thousands of others watching large-screen television hookups in nearby buildings.

The church owns 11 radio and two television stations in seven major U.S. markets, but most of the coverage will be done on a public service basis, a church spokesman said. Sessions which receive the widest airing include singing by the 375-voice Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

The church pays for transmission of conference sessions, and the local stations donate the time, said Jerry Chhill, church public communications official.

He said some of the broadcasts are done on a delayed basis, from tapes sent to media outlets by the church.

Tapes are also used to make translations for broadcast in several languages, he said. The programs are beamed to some stations in Europe and other parts of the world through short-wave facilities. The church formerly owned a large short-wave station in New York but recently sold it.

Sessions are also translated simultaneously into 13 languages for broadcast into 300 earphones wired for foreign visitors in the Mormon Tabernacle.

All sessions are open to the general public except the Saturday evening meeting, which is broadcast by closed circuit to hundreds of gatherings of priesthood holders in the United States and Canada.

Saturday morning's 7 a.m. MDT session on the church's welfare program is broadcast only locally through educational television facilities at church-owned BYU.

Among business to be conducted at the conference is appointment of a new member of the church's First Council of the Seventy, a seven-member group of General Authorities to replace Elder Milton R. Hunter who died last June.

Council votes to allow board to control $9,000

By LANE THROSSELL
Universe Staff Writers

ASBYU Executive Council voted today to give the Organizations Review Board control of $9,000 of ASBYU funds. The board will distribute these funds to campus special interest groups after their fund requests.

In their action, the council voted to send $464.40 from the College of Provo to the College Council.

College Council, which is made of representatives from each of the university's schools, will meet Tuesday to consider that the council works with a budget of $9,000.

Executives also approved a draft of a letter to Gov. Calvin Rampton written by Henrie, ASBYU president. The letter will be a definite indication of when a light will be installed at the intersection of 2230 North St. and City Avenue and suggests the state take action to promote safety at the intersection.

Henrie proposed the installation of signs reading "Watch for Pedestrians" or "Slow for Children" to alert motorists of the potential dangers of the intersection. He also suggested that the state again consider lowering the speed limit along that portion of the highway after the traffic light is installed.

Each ASBYU office will conduct a self-evaluation and prepare a report of its findings. The report will include descriptions of the office's goals, functions, recent changes and strengths and weaknesses.

Dr. Keith Warner, chairman of the Steering Committee for Institutional Self-Study, told the Executive Council its reports would be presented to a reaccreditation committee along with similar reports from each university office and department.

Henrie said the reports would be edited and bound into a 25 to 30 page book. This work will be sent to other university administrations and student governments, with the goal of explaining BYU procedures to them.

Campus broadcasts

BYU students will be able to hear both sessions of the Sunday General Conference in the Wilkenson Center.

The 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. sessions will be broadcast in the Varsity Theater and on the televisions in the stereo listening room in the Memorial Lounge. The sound will be broadcast throughout the ELWC.

KBYU-TV will re-broadcast the sessions of General Conference, beginning today at 9 p.m. KBYU will be carrying one session of General Conference each evening through Wednesday.

Oct. 9-11 the three sessions of Relief Society General Conference will be re-broadcast.

The Welfare session will be shown on Oct. 12 at 9 p.m.

Workers to be cut at Geneva

By KENNETH M. JOHANSEN
Universe Staff Writer

An unspecified number of people will be laid off from the Geneva Steel Plant in Oregon, starting Saturday night, according to Jack Barlow, public relations official for Geneva.

One of the reasons for the layoffs may be the closing Sunday morning of an open-hearth furnace at the plant, according to a foreman who asked not to be identified.

Barlow indicated a number of employees being laid off will be replaced by others coming off vacations who have seniority.

He said the number of employees would not change significantly with the layoffs.

He said that since July, the steel market has been slow and only two of the three blast furnaces and four of the 10 open hearth furnaces have been in operation.

The number of open hearth furnaces has fluctuated with the demand, he added.

"Production has been reduced because there have been no orders of steel," he said.

Dropping? Final day is Monday

Monday is the last day to drop classes, make section changes or change from credit to audit.

Rob Nixon, administrative aid to the Registration Office, stressed that students who drop classes Monday must pay a $5 late fee. Classes may be dropped at no charge during the first two weeks of the semester only.

After Monday, classes may be dropped only for non-academic emergencies such as medical emergencies, said Nixon.

Students who fail to officially drop a class and do not complete course requirements receive a UW (unofficial withdrawal) on their transcripts, according to the Records Office.

A UW has the same effect as an E on a Grade Point Average.

Add-drop cards may be obtained from the Registration Office or from college advisement centers.

Obtaining a teacher's signature before the deadline does not mean the class is officially dropped. "A teacher's signature on a drop card is mandatory, but not the final step," said Nixon. "Dropping is not finalized until the card is in our office."

President Kimball to speak, play bells on Founder's Day

President Spencer W. Kimball will be the featured speaker at the 145th Semiannual Founder's Day celebration in the Marriott Center Oct. 10. He will later officially play a musical phrase on the new Centennial carillon bells to signal the beginning of the second century.

BYU Pres. Dallin H. Oaks announced that the 10 a.m. convocation is the major event marking the founding of the University 100 years ago. The public is invited to attend.

Proceeding the convocation, an academic procession will march from the Smoot Administration Building to the Marriott Center. Prior to the academic procession at 7:50 a.m., there will be a Founder's Day march from lower campus to the Smoot Administration Building.

Following the Marriott Center convocation in which President Kimball will dedicate the Centennial Carillon Tower, he will unveil a plaque at the base of the tower, then play the first official tune on the bronze bells hanging about 70 feet above.

Altered ski resort study meets Provo go-ahead

By PEGGY CHU
Universe Staff Writer

City Commissioners gave the go-ahead Thursday to resume the social study on the Wilderness area proposed ski resort.

The study was halted Aug. 6 when the Regional Commission said it was withdrawing its share for the impact study. Money was withdrawn because a city-attitude questionnaire was sent to four corners for approval of the study.

Dr. J. Lynn England, an assistant professor of sociology at BYU, who developed the sociological impact study, said cutting costs will not affect the study. "This will be just as satisfactory a study as we planned at first," he said.

England said he had hoped to review local records for crime data and divorce rates. But this information is not critical to the study, he said, and some of this information may be obtained in other ways.

In response to criticism of the questionnaire that offended the Four-Corners commission, Dr. England said, "There were no words in the study which are not read in the newspapers, such as rape or sex." He added that the purpose of some of the questions was "to determine whether area residents viewed skiers' attitudes about the morality of various acts differently from their own."

The delay of the impact study may result in complications for the U.S. Forest Service. The study was scheduled for completion Sept. 15, but Howell estimated the study will not be completed until December. The Forest Service is awaiting the study before it gives a special use permit for the proposed ski resort.

project manager and coordinator for the study, met with the Provo commissioners to report on a meeting held with the Eyring research personnel. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss means of lowering the cost of the study.

Howell said the cost could be trimmed from the study without affecting it adversely. He added the city would be able to do the final typing and publication of the report which would save some money. Some federal planning assistance funds are available from HUD. These funds could also be used to make up the needed funds.

Last day to vote for freshman rep

Voting for an ASBYU freshman representative will end today.

The two candidates remaining in the election after last week's primaries are Blair Dance and Scott Earnshaw.

Four voting booths, operated by Intercollegiate Knights, are located on campus. The two booths in the Wilkinson Center will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Booths in the Cannon Center and Morris Center will be open from 11 a.m. until 7 p.m., according to Frank Wirig, adviser to the freshman vice president.

House contest to offer prizes

Prizes and trophies will be awarded during the home exterior decorating contest, part of the annual Homecoming festivities, Oct. 6-11.

All residents of campus halls and all students living off campus are encouraged to enter, according to Lee Swenson, publicity director for Homecoming.

Decorations should be in keeping with the 1975 theme, "Celebrating a Century," and applications for the contest are available in 115-B ELWC, Swenson said.

Trophies will be given for three categories: most humorous; most originals; and best use of theme. There will also be an "overall best" trophy.

There is a limit of $40 per hall or apartment complex. Deadline for applications is Monday. They should be turned in to the Homecoming Office, 115-B ELWC. Judging is Wednesday.

Cheer winner will get tickets

Two 50-yard line tickets for the Homecoming Game will go to the winner of the "Yell of the Week Award" being sponsored by the BYU yell leaders in conjunction with the ASBYU Athletics Office.

Students may submit yells, cheers and chants in boxes located in the Morris and Cannon Centers and at the information desk in the Wilkinson Center. The deadline for submission is 4 p.m. today.

Voting? Register on Saturday

Students wishing to vote in Provo's primary elections Tuesday need to register on Saturday.

According to William F. Huish, county clerk, state law prohibits registration at the county clerk's office within 10 days before an election.

Huish said that there are 74 offices in and around Provo which will handle registration on Saturday. "Each voter must register at the office which corresponds to the area in which he lives," he said.

He also added that specific resident qualifications must be met by those persons interested in voting. Students must declare Utah residency and that by doing so, they will lose any other state's residency. Students who wish to vote in the municipal election on Nov. 4 are to register in the clerk's office any time during office hours except Oct. 14 and 18, which have been reserved for districts throughout the county, Huish said.

Listed below are registration agents and locations for Provo City. Any city resident not properly registered to vote in Tuesday's primary may register at the following locations Saturday between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m.

Senate votes yes on natural gas bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate refused Thursday to kill a proposal that would end price controls on natural gas over the next five years in an effort to increase production.

The vote of 50 to 45 to keep the proposal alive came 24 hours after the Senate rejected a quicker removal of controls 57 to 31. A vote could come later on whether to actually adopt the amendment to end controls over five years.

Republicans and gas-state Democrats are seeking to let natural gas prices rise on the assumption this would promote increased production.

The Ford administration has urged repeal of controls on grounds they have held prices so low that industry's attempts to find new oil and gas are being thwarted by a lack of money.

Under a 1964 Supreme Court decision, the Federal Power Commission regulates the price of natural gas that is sold outside the state where it is produced. The current FPC ceiling price is 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet mcf, although the nationwide average price of this interstate gas is about 30 cents.

The passage of Wednesday's proposal would have removed price controls from gas presently not under contract, retroactive to July 1.

Laotian goes 'home' to Ogden

Ogden (AP) — A Laotian government official, who 14 years ago was an exchange student in an Ogden home, returned here, because communist Pathet Lao tried to "reeducate" him. Mounarath, his wife Phouvieng and two children are being sponsored by the same family that hosted him when he attended Ogden High School as an American Field Service exchange student.

In Laos, Mounarath was chief of the financial department for the Laotian National Water Supply Authority in Vientiane.

He was 1961 valedictorian at Ogden High, returning to the United States in 1964 to attend Columbia University, where he graduated in business administration.

Mounarath says he won't discuss Laotian politics for fear of reprisals against family members still there.

He does say: "They are very much against Americanism and will not allow us even to mention Americans. I was accused of being a right-wing reactionary and of working for the "American imperialist CIA."

"If I had stayed, I would have been sent to a political seminar directed by the Pathet Lao—that's a place in the country where you learn not to do anything," he said. "The Pathet Lao puts you back to the beginning by making you do manual work and letting your mind become as blank as possible," Mounarath said. "Then they re-educate you, inscribing new things in your mind."

Mounarath said his wife agreed to leave because she knew if they had stayed, they would have been separated.

Y department has own Shakespeare

By ANA A. ALBA
Universe Staff Writer

Would you believe William Shakespeare is alive and well? He is, and he's right here at BYU.

William Shakespeare is an administrative assistant in the English Department. He is originally from Tropic, Utah, near Price Canyon. His grandfather, for whom he is named, was a settler by Brigham Young as a result to what is today called Shakespeare Point.

Shakespeare's ancestors came from England, where his great-grandfather was the "keeper of the game," an important position in the kingdom which had been in the family for many generations.

English major

Shakespeare's college major was physical education and mathematics before he went on his mission to England 10 years ago. While in England, he developed an appreciation for literature and decided to change his major to English. He graduated from BYU in 1970.

Shakespeare has written some poetry but he said he never tried to publish it. "There are people who are good at writing and others who are good at recognizing good writing," he said. He added he believes he belongs to the second group.

Shakespeare said he became aware of his name at a very early age when his schoolmates teased him, singing, "Where have you been, Billy Boy?"

When Shakespeare was seven years old, the BYU band went to Tropic to play. One of the band members found out his name. He put Shakespeare on the stand and calling his band companions, went through a very elaborate introduction.

This is just one of the many experiences Shakespeare has had. One he says he can't forget happened in England during his mission. At the close of a meeting the officer conducting said, "Elder William Shakespeare will offer the closing prayer." A little girl exclaimed in a heavy English accent, "It can't be! William Shakespeare died 300 years ago!"

Asked if his name has influenced him in any way, he said it has helped him to develop his sense of humor.

Idaho expects honey to drop

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Commercial bees in Idaho will produce nearly five pounds of honey this year for every man, woman and child in the state.

The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Tuesday production is expected to be about 3.7 million pounds, down 37 per cent from last year.

Most of the drop is attributed to reduced yield. Honey production is estimated at 39 pounds per colony, compared to 64 pounds last year.

Nationally the honey crop is expected to be up three per cent.

Stores blamed for cost

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A Utah farm spokesman says retail chain stores are causing high milk prices.

Leo Nuttall, an official of the National Farmers Organization, spoke Wednesday night at a consumer seminar.

Average markup on milk in Idaho, he said, is 41 per cent.

Nuttall suggested purchasing milk at outlets which feature lower prices such as "captive dairy stores."

He defined a captive milk store as one that sells milk only under its own brand. He said supermarkets sell milk under several different labels but it's all the same grade.

For BYU Centennial

Equipment wanted for display

The Brigham Young Academy expedition to South America in 1900. This is the type of equipment sought by BYU students for a display depicting that era.

Wanted: one turn-of-the-century canvas pyramid tent, old-time riding and pack saddles, canteens, bugle, Winchester rifle, cartridge belt, bowie knife, early fishing gear, cameras and surveying instruments.

The equipment—if it can be located—will be featured in a special student government-sponsored exhibit depicting Brigham Young Academy's expedition to South America in 1900 headed by Pres. Benjamin Cluff Jr.

It will be the second in a series of displays in the Wilkinson Center running through the Centennial year illustrating the events, styles and achievements of various BYU administrations.

The camping gear sought by the students will depict the Cluff expedition camp near Nogales on the Mexican border. The expedition sought archeological, biological and geographical information. The party suffered tremendous hardships and was only partially successful.

In addition to the campus scene, the exhibit will include displays of rare birds, animals and pottery collected by Chester Van Buren, an expedition member, and a graphic presentation of the academic contributions of Benjamin Cluff Jr., who served as president between 1892 and 1903. During his administration, his title was changed from "principal" to "president," and the "Academy" became a "University" in 1903.

Game tonight

Y, Lobos will battle

By TERRI BELL
Universe Sports Writer

The last time BYU was shut out before last week's loss to Arizona State was in 1971, when the Cougars were blanked 14-0 by New Mexico, the team they will face tonight.

The Cougars lead the 24-year-old rivalry, with 13 victories to UNM's 10, and one tie. BYU has won the last three meetings.

Last year the game at Albuquerque was dominated by the Cougars, who demolished the Lobos 36-3. BYU quarterback Gary Sheild completed 15 of 29 passes for 244 yards. Kicker Mark Ueselman booted field goals of 38, 30 and 36 yards for the Cougars, while UNM's only score came on a 26-yard field goal by Bob Berg.

All-American Berg will be returning as kicker tonight. The game involves much kicking, the Lobos are expected to carry the edge in that category.

Berg is five for five on points after touchdown this season and seven for eight on field goal attempts. He has kicked 28 field goals for the Lobos, seven short of the WAC record.

New Mexico was ranked with the upper division WAC teams in the preseason polls, but the Lobos haven't found this season easy. After blanking Fresno State, 29-0, they were defeated by Texas Tech 24-17 at Lubbock. Last week the Lobos were upset by Colorado State 27-16 at Albuquerque.

If last year is any indication, the Cougars should defeat, or at least tie the Lobos tonight. The Cats took a dismal 0-3 start last season, finally battling CSU to a 33-33 tie in the fourth game.

Following last Saturday's loss to Arizona State, Coach Lowell Edwards said, "We followed our game plan (avoiding long yardage situations) well, but we ran into penalties and made some mistakes that moved us out of scoring position."

Despite the 0-3 record, Edwards said, "Team attitude is still good and we're ready for a win against New Mexico. We're improving a little each game, but we have to cut down on our mistakes."

BYU's line play, both offensive and defensive, was impressive in the game Saturday. The Cougars choked off several TD threats "close" to the goal and the offensive line opened good holes for the running backs. The Lobos have picked off nine enemy passes in their first three games this season, while the Cougars Stan Varner and Mark McCluskey have each brought down one.

BYU's quarterback Mark Giles has 36 completions in 68 attempts, a .529 average, for 345 yards, three TD's, and a 9.58 yard average in passing. He has been intercepted seven times.

Steve Myer... Lobo quarterback

The Lobo's Steve Myer, said to be one of the best in the country, has four scores for 502 total yards, and a 44.5 completion percentage with 37 completions in 83 tries. He's been intercepted five times.

The Cougars should be in good shape tonight. Tailback Jeff Blanc is recovering from a bruised thigh which hindered his performance last week. Split end George Harris may miss the game, as will starting fullback Todd Christensen, who sustained a foot injury in the CSU game.

Three of the Lobo players are on the questionable list. Defensive end Robin Cole twisted his ankle in the CSU game, missing the fourth quarter. Offensive tackle Mike Andrakowicz missed the CSU game with a bruised thigh but should be ready for tonight. Guard Ed Bell has muscle problems in his knee, but "seems to be regaining mobility," according to Head Coach Bill Mondt.

In the ASU game, for the first time this season, the Cougars played a quarterback other than Giles. Sophomore Gifford Nielsen completed four of 11 passes, one interception, gaining 38 yards for a 9.5 average. Both Nielsen and Jeff Duva may see action tonight.

Former flankerback Jeff Nilsson will probably start at split end and sophomore John Van Der Woude will start at flankerback. Sophomore Roger Gourley will probably replace Christensen at fullback. The rest of the lineup will remain unchanged.

Women's hockey begins play today

BYU's women's field hockey team opens its season this week in two separate matches with Utah State and the University of Utah.

The Cougar team will travel to Logan today to take on USU, and will play the Utes next Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. on the south field of the Smith Fieldhouse.

Coach Kathy Lewis said "the team members need more confidence in each another for more efficient play." The Cougars will be working on field strategy and ball-handling techniques to ready them for their upcoming matches.

Field hockey is played by two 11-member teams in 35-minute halves and is a big sport in the Eastern United States, according to Coach Lewis.

"It's an exciting game," she says. "When it gets in your blood, whether as a player or a spectator, it's hard to give up."

"Frugality is a fair fortune, and the habits of industry a good estate."

Pool Cougars will face UW

The BYU varsity water polo team will travel to the University of Utah Saturday to take on the University of Wyoming in a match scheduled for 11 a.m.

According to Gill Fellingham, BYU water polo coach, the match is being held at the U. of U. pool since Utah and Wyoming are competing tonight. "The Utah pool will be ready and this will make it so Wyoming won't have to travel so far," he said.

BYU has a 1-2 record for the season.

Light sleeping saves student from bed fire

By DONALD B. CANOVA
Universe Staff Writer

The ability to sleep lightly probably saved a BYU student from burning in his bed Tuesday morning.

John Iler, 21, from Arlington, Va., said he was awakened about 8 a.m. in his Alta apartment to an electrical buzzing sound. "An ant can't walk through my room without waking me up," he said.

"When I opened my eyes, I saw a wisp of smoke curling around the foot of my bed. I ripped the plug to my electric blanket from the wall and got some water," he said.

Iler poured the water on the smoking blankets at the foot of his bed. "I thought I had put it out," he said. "I later that I hadn't," lamented Iler.

Thinking the fire was out, Iler walked into another room to make a phone call. He closed the door to his bedroom on the fire. When he returned, and opened the door, a large puff of smoke hit him in the face.

"I didn't know that as I was calling my father to negotiate getting a new electric blanket a fire was spreading through my mattress," Iler said.

He then called the fire station and roused the manager of Alta. The fire trucks took about seven minutes to get to the apartment. While the firemen were donning gas masks, the manager tried to rush into the room with a portable extinguisher, Iler said.

"The smoke was so heavy he couldn't get in," Iler remarked. The firemen took over from there and put the fire out. They dragged the burnt mattress and box

Campaign in process for Y gifts

Development Week gave Utah County businessmen the opportunity to go "beyond the generosity they have already shown."

Dr. McKinlay, president of the SDA, said that a group of 10 student volunteers are visiting businesses and corporations in Utah County to seek financial support of the new Harold B. Lee Library. The fund raising is a culminating activity of Development Week which ended Thursday.

McKinlay said that although businesses have given generously to charities and other campus campaigns, "we hope because it is the Centennial year that we can rely on some extra support from the generosity they have already shown."

The volunteers began visiting local businesses early this week and will continue their efforts through the first part of next week, according to McKinlay. About 40 businesses and corporations will receive visits by student fund-raisers on an advanced calendar. But the SDA's effort with local businessmen won't stop after making these initial contacts. The second objective of the campaign will be to contact all businesses and corporations in Utah County with four or more employees, said McKinlay.

More than 100 volunteers will be achieved through personal visits by students to the various businesses in the area. He said that if donations have been contacted to perform this canvas.

Centennial Celebrities

Reed Smoot, the son of Abraham O. Smoot, was born in the Smoot homestead in the Twentieth Ward of Salt Lake City on Jan. 10, 1862.

As a boy he herded cows on the "Tenth Ward Bench" and studied under Karl G. Maeser in the Twentieth Ward School. When his father was called by President Brigham Young to be the president of the Utah State, the family moved to Provo.

Reed enrolled in the Timpanogos Branch of the University of Deseret under Warren N. Dusenberry. Then in April 1876, he was among the first 29 students to enroll in B.Y.A.'s first regular academic term under Principal Karl G. Maeser. He graduated from B.Y.A. in 1879.

After his graduation, he became prominent in business and commerce. He was manager of the Provo Woolen Mills, owner of the Smoot

During an address he gave in the College of lower campus on Nov. 1926, he spoke of B.Y.A. was planted in the seed does not bring failures planted there with all that faith could con God's blessing was upon it and it shall never growing.

LDS economists to meet at Y

The first official gathering of LDS economists will be held at BYU Monday and Tuesday.

Two-hundred experts from universities, government agencies and private businesses from across the nation are expected to attend.

Dr. J. Kenneth Davies, professor of economics at BYU, said the object of the symposium is to professionalize thinking, writing, research and publishing of economists where LDS economics figure in their work.

Dr. Davies indicated further that the conference could result in an LDS Economics Association.

One of the highlights of the conference will be a lecture by Leonard Arrington, LDS Church Historian, on the economics of the LDS Church—past, present and future.

Discussions during the symposium will be on the LDS role in policy-making and church economics, the LDS role in research and development, the United Order and the Law of Conservation, Mormon ethics and institutional behavior, LDS economic history and Mormonism, capitalism and the role of law.

There will be a number of prominent academic economists attending," Davies said. These include Armen Alchian from UCLA, James Buchanan from Virginia Polytechnical Institute, Robert A. Dahl from Northwestern University.

A number of LDS economists in high government positions will be in attendance, including assistant secretaries from the Departments of Defense, Commerce, Agriculture, Treasury and Interior. They will participate in a symposium on the role of the LDS economists in the policy decision-making of the federal government, Davies said.

Papers will be presented on ethics and behavior, economic thought, economics of the family and resource development.

Number of clubs increases registration deadline today

Today is the deadline for registration of all B.Y.U. clubs at the Organizations Office.

John Plocher, vice president, said he expects more than 180 clubs to register this year, compared to 135 registrations last year.

Before registration, he said, clubs must: (1) elect officers; (2) turn in an officer clearance form; (3) have constitutions approved; (4) open a bank account if dues are to be collected; (5) have club officers interviewed by Plocher or one of the organizations administrative assistants; and (6) have a financial audit.

"The function of the Organizations Office is to act as a representative between the administration and the clubs," Plocher said.

The office also correlates the activities of the various clubs, and aids in the development of the clubs and the people involved, he said. The office encourages announcements on campus in which clubs are encouraged to participate.

Sheriff eager to share crime prevention tips

By ROBERT S. MERRILL
Universe Staff Writer

Two-week crime prevention institute at the University of Utah has provided present officials with programs the county sheriff believes should help cut crime rate.

Institute, sponsored by the Police Standards and Training Council of the state, addressed different types of crime on programs that civic and service organizations could be involved in.

Programs include a stenciling program public to use and a program to teach public how to secure homes and cars against would-be burglars.

Utah County Sheriff Mark Holley said that when he signed on with the hospital 30 years ago there were approximately 55 beds and the laboratory was a plain square room with little automated equipment.

Since that time bed capacity has more than tripled, and a laboratory completed in 1969 covers more 16,000 square feet.

"There were seven or eight doctors on the staff then," Thatcher said. "Most of them that would supersede all others, he said.

As a non-member of the LDS church, Dr. Chouleur feels this is one of the few "living" churches in the world. He says that a church, in order to be alive, must be expanding, have the ability to retain members and be able to change readily.

While at BYU, he has learned to appreciate the American people and their friendliness. However, he indicated his eagerness to return to France, where his wife and three children

'Hospital patriarch' at UVH to retire as laboratory chief

By JANELLE BROWN
Universe Staff Writer

When William Thatcher retires Saturday after nearly 30 years at Utah Valley Hospital, he will relinquish his unofficial title as "hospital patriarch."

Thatcher, the hospital's chief lab technician, has seen his department grow from a staff of one—himself—to a group of 85.

"Utah Valley Hospital is a lot different than it was when I started working for it in December of 1945," Thatcher said. "But while the service is much better and the equipment far more technical, the atmosphere of helping is pretty much the same," he added.

Thatcher said that when he signed on with the hospital 30 years ago there were approximately 55 beds and the laboratory was a plain square room with little automated equipment. Since that time bed capacity has more than tripled, and a laboratory completed in 1969 covers more 16,000 square feet.

"There were seven or eight doctors on the staff then," Thatcher said. "Most of them have passed away now. In a way the medical facilities were a sort of sheep camp compared to what they are now."

Thatcher said he joined the staff at UVH after serving in the Army as a lab technician and teaching recruits lab procedure. "I felt well trained for the position when I came to the hospital."

While initially he was responsible for all facets of lab work in the small hospital, Thatcher said that eventually the areas became more specialized and many present lab technicians spend most of their time in one specific area of the laboratory.

"It wasn't easy to find trained, qualified laboratory technicians in those days," he said. "The tests we were able to conduct were very limited compared to what we can do now."

Although he's seen a tremendous amount of change already at Utah Valley, Thatcher says he predicts that the hospital will keep on improving and changing at a rapid rate.

"I think we will see much shorter hospital stays," he added that he thought the recently approved addition would be a great benefit to residents of Utah County.

'Family hour' PR gimmick?

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A University of Utah psychologist says the television industry's "family hour" policy is "a public relations gimmick" and "a sop to the Federal Communication Commission."

Dr. Victory Cline, who says he has evidence that prolonged exposure to antisocial violence tends to blunt sensitivity to violence, says the policy is merely "a shuffling of programs, but no essential change as far as the amount of antisocial violence goes."

Cline blames television violence in part for the rising crime rate in the country.

Under the "family hour" experiment, television networks have agreed with the FCC to eliminate violence and sex from programs between 7-9 p.m.

Internships offered in federal agencies

By LOIS KOHLER
Universe Staff Writer

Students interested in public affairs may participate in an internship program with major government agencies in Washington, D.C. during spring term.

The program called the Washington Seminar, will provide participants with realistic, practical experience in American government. The interns are placed in all major government agencies including legislative, administrative and executive branches, according to Dr. Keith Melville, professor of Political Science and director of the seminar.

As interns, Dr. Melville said, students are employed for the eight-week term by government agencies and receive eight hours of academic credit.

Tuition for spring is paid to the Department of Travel studies. The cost of living in Washington, D.C. is supplied by the interns, but some compensation is available through the Political Science Department, said Dr. Melville.

The quality for participation, candidates must be upper-division or graduate students. He said students are selected on the basis of their academic standing, skills and training and experience in public affairs.

Interested students should apply through the Political Science Department. A tentative deadline for application has been set for Oct. 15.

Not all students involved in the Washington Seminar are from the areas of political science and American government. According to Dr. Melville, the seminar draws from all colleges of the university.

The Washington Seminar has existed for the past three years. Dr. Melville said the first year the program involved 20 students. Last year, 65 interns participated.

Success and growth of the seminar can be attributed to the practical experience gained by the participants, according to Dr. Melville. He said one intern reported personal gains that put him two years ahead of other students in his major field of study.

There must be a reason.

Road Test Magazine's choice for 1975 Import Car of the Year, the Speed Subaru GR.

Why the GR? Road Test calls it "tough as a tank" and "outstanding." Its built-in simplicity makes it the cool mechanic's dream.

And check out these standard features — front wheel drive (great in the snow), full instrumentation, fully independent suspension and ABS radio.

Susie should be invalid ...but try to catch her

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—If you want to tell Susie Funke she can't walk, you may have to chase her around a high school track.

Susie, 20, was paralyzed in her right side after an automobile accident near her hometown of Hawthorne, Nev., two years ago. Doctors told the track star she would never walk again.

She was still in a semicomatose when her parents moved to Boise and she was transferred to a Boise hospital.

Now she is trying for her old speed as she runs on the track and works part time as a library assistant for the Central District Health Department.

"I just wanted to get better," she said. "I didn't have time for self-pity."

She was transferred to the Elks Rehabilitation Center about 18 months ago, unable to walk or sit upright. She began a schedule of as many as 12 rehabilitation classes a day, rising at 6 a.m. and working all day. She couldn't eat or brush her teeth by herself.

As she worked, she steadily relearned the use of her muscles for such seemingly impossible tasks as walking. She progressed from wheelchair to crutches to cane.

Now she says she has some problems with balance, but can walk well and run.

"I used to run the 440 and I wanted to run again," she said.

"It's just not as fast as I used to be."

"You can't look at the negative side," she said. "You have to be positive. I always hoped and felt that eventually I'd make it."

Y troupe to perform at Frolics

The Young Ambassadors, a previous decade, he added they have been described by Mary Lippman, director of the program, as "a troupe of young people who will be performing in the Services, U.S.A., in Centennial Frolics on Oct. 10 Washington D.C., as they have performed in to see."

The entertainers made their national television debut in the Jubilee Auditorium in Edmonton, Canada, Teatro American countries in July Colombia in Bogota, and August, 1973. The troupe will be performing in the Jubilee Auditorium in Wichita, Kansas, and the audience for the television Teatro Nacional Cervantes in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and the Alamo, according to Allen publicity director for Frolics.

The current group of 50 student performers includes a 20-piece orchestra of brass, wind, and string instruments, although it includes numbers in the vocal coach, and children as well, said Allen.

In addition to those who perform, there are those who are required to meet high academic and performance standards to maintain their membership in the troupe.

Former Program Bureau director, Allen, said the repertoire includes a wide variety of popular numbers, professional entertainment, including a medley of country and western, and country western. "The Letterman," Sandi and numbers, nostalgic hits of the Sall of the Lawrence Welk Show, and a special show on entertainment styles of Young.

Y to show rare Egyptian Sculptures

This sculpture is one of those which will be on exhibit in the Secured Art Gallery, HFAC next week. The sculptures represent Gods and rulers of ancient Egypt.

An extremely valuable and security in force. The entire exhibit was on display in the collection, 44 Egyptian sculptures from the El-Amarna Period in existence and that the Akhenaten period, which is the period of the originality of the works are without question.

This period of ancient Egyptian art is characterized by the worship of a single god, Amen, and the family—King Akhenaten, Queen Nefertiti, and their six children. The collection consists of a series of portraits of the royal family, King Akhenaten, Nefertiti, and their children. The collection is on loan from the M.A. Mansour collection of San Francisco.

Dr. Andreina Leanza, professor of Egyptology, emerita, at the Secured Gallery, HFAC, will be a guest lecturer at the reception for the speaker will be held at that time. The public is invited to view the collection from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily from Saturday to Sunday, June 12, 1973.

This collection of Egyptian sculptures has been studied by Dr. Becker-Colonna. It is on loan to BYU from the M.A. Mansour collection of San Francisco.

The capital city he had built, Akhetaten, was a new city, which he grew more and more intolerant of any gods but his own, with whom he seems to have been completely, and after his death there was a violent reaction against him and his family, and the city was destroyed. Akhenaten ruled only 17 years from 1367 to 1350 B.C.

The Mansour collection of Egyptian sculpture for which Akhenaten was responsible. The face is long and thin, the eyes are elongated, the nose is thin, and the lips are full. The collection is on loan to BYU from the M.A. Mansour collection of San Francisco.

Piano concerto to highlight Founder's Day convocation

"Centennial Fantasy," a although popular many years ago, are now unknown to BYU students, and copies will be made and distributed to the choir. The concert will be held at the LDS Church Center in Salt Lake City on Oct. 10, 1975. The concert will be a highlight of the BYU the music before the Founder's Day convocation.

The assembly, a major event by Dr. Bradshaw, who is celebrating his 100th birthday, will be held at the LDS Church Center in Salt Lake City on Oct. 10, 1975. The concert will be a highlight of the BYU the music before the Founder's Day convocation.

Dr. Bradshaw will conduct the BYU Philharmonic Orchestra.

Music will play an important role in the ceremonies. The audience will be treated to a variety of musical styles, including a number of school songs, hymns, and popular music. The concert will be a highlight of the BYU the music before the Founder's Day convocation.
